Dear Parents,

The Breck Foundation – Parent Workshop

This week in school, the children have taken part in e-safety workshops in class, led by The Breck Foundation. The Breck Foundation are a charity who were set up by Lorin, the mother of Breck. Through age appropriate work, they teach children about the safety needed when participating in games online. We are aware that many of our children enjoy playing games online, and we are also aware that many of them communicate with others while doing so. Therefore, we feel that this was an important workshop to hold in school for all our children.

The Breck Foundation also held an online session for parents too. Thank-you to those of you who came and the positive feedback about this session.

They have released a recording of this and you can access this below. The link will expire on Monday, 17th February and I would encourage you to watch this ahead of then.

There is also a Post-Presentation pack for parents which is attached to this letter. We hope you will find this useful.

Yours sincerely,
